"I put my shoes on before my pants to remind myself life isn't easy."

Dog On Board

A woman called our airline customer-service desk asking if she could take her dog on board.

"Sure," I said, "as long as you provide your own kennel." I further explained that the kennel needed to be large enough for the dog to stand up, sit down, turn around, and roll over.

The customer was flummoxed, "I'll never be able to teach him all of that by tomorrow!"

Old Meters

At the gas utility where I work, written orders are issued to change meters when they are older or malfunctioning. On the order sheet is a "remarks" section, where the service representative notes any problems that prevented the job from being completed.

Motorcycle season is almost here! Don't let your customers leave home without coverage!

The most succinct explanation to ever come back was, "DOG DOES NOT WANT METER TO BE CHANGED."

Self-Conscious

I was self-conscious about going to the gym, because I thought the pounds I had put on would make me stand out among the spandex-clad regulars. I chose a treadmill in the corner so I'd be inconspicuous. However, as I exercised, my worst fears came true. At least a dozen people turned to stare at me periodically. I thought it might be my imagination, but then one woman even squinted to get a better look. Mortified, I stepped off the machine to leave. When I turned around, I realized that the gym's only wall clock had been hanging just inches above my head.

Beauty Shop

I spent more than two hours in the beauty shop getting my hair permed, cut and styled.

Relieved to be done, I went up to the receptionist to pay.

"Good afternoon!" she said cheerfully. "And who's your appointment with today?"

Teacher

During my first meeting with my physically challenged students, I assured them that most people are handicapped in some way.

"Look at me," I said. "My eyes are so bad, I need to wear glasses. Because I can barely hear, I need a hearing aid. And look at my ears, they're much bigger than they should be."

From the back, a boy added, "And your nose, too."

Post Office

"Do you want to insure this?" asked the clerk at the Post Office when I handed her my package.

"Nope," I replied. "The contents aren't breakable."

The clerk wasn't so sure. "Ma'am, we are professionals. We can break anything."
