"Stop me if you've heard this already—said no kid ever."

Concert

When my youngest daughter was three, she begged to be allowed to attend a concert with her older sister and brother. She assured me she was a big girl and would behave herself.

As we took our seats in the orchestra hall, I handed programs to the kids. Following the lead of her older siblings, my three-year-old opened her program, and in her most grown-up voice said, "Mommy, I'll have the chicken, please..."

furious.

"What's the idea of writing me an hour-long speech." he raged at the press officer. "Most of the audience walked out before I was even halfway through!"

The press officer was mystified. "I wrote you a twenty-minute speech," he said. "I also gave you the two extra copies you asked for."

Driving Lesson

As she slid behind the wheel for her first driving lesson, my daughter could hardly contain her excitement.

"You need to make adjustments so the car is comfortable for you, the driver," I began. "Now, what's the first thing you should do?"

"Change the station on the radio," she said.

Candy Bars

When it comes to candy bars, the term fun-sized is misleading.

There is nothing fun about your candy bar being half the size of a regular bar.

You should call them what they are, "disappointment sized."

Shocking

I opened my electric bill at the same time I opened my water bill.

Needless to say, I was shocked.

New Patient

The doctor asked the new patient, "Did you come to see me with an eye problem?"

The patients was amazed and said, "Wow, yes, how can you tell?"

The doctor replied, "Because you came in through the window instead of the door."

Long Speech

A chief executive of a major company was scheduled to address an important convention, so he asked the press officer to write him a punchy, twenty-minute speech. When the chief executive returned from the convention, he was

Barbecue

They threw me out of the cinema today for bringing my own food. But, come on the prices are way too high, plus I haven't had a barbecue in months.
